

To start with our school is named after the brothers Cyril and Methodius who invented the Glagolitic alphabet which is the oldest known Slavic alphabet. During their time they were known as prolific scholars and were greatly respected. After their death the students who were educated under their supervision continued spreading the knowledge and gradually the alphabet we know of today was born. However with time their contributions became disvalued and a lot of people stopped celebrating them and their accomplishments and most of the students in our school don't even care why we celebrate Cyril and Methodius . To put it more simply the students need to respect their work because without them we wouldn't have an alphabet that we can call our own. According to the older generations in Bulgaria we don't value our alphabet enough. In order to bring more light to the history of our language we have to set a higher standard of education but its also our responsibility to take interest in our culture and language. All things considered these are some of the many reasons we have to celebrate and take pride in the great and brilliant brothers to which our school with lots of history is named after.

-Alex and Anelia 11 A class