

РОМАН РОМАНОВ, 11 В КЛАС

Cyril and Methodius, two great creators of the Slavic language, over time, the language has changed in different countries and more than 400 million people speak it now, I wonder how they even came up with the idea to do this, now many people say that the creators of the Slavic language, that is, Cyril and Methodius supposedly their nationality, but if you delve into history, they come from the town of Thessalonica, which is now called Thessaloniki and is located on the territory of Greece, and they themselves said that they were Romeans, subjects of the Byzantine Empire and in their hometown there were most of the Slavs. Bulgaria was the first people who received the alphabet a later, books were received from Bulgaria to Russia that were translated from Greek into Slavic, Methodius had a military education and was even a governor in a small province of the Byzantine Empire, and Cyril became a Philosopher, the most interesting thing is how two completely different people came to one and did it for real the discovery that people use, I'm glad that I speak the Slavic language, happy holiday to everyone
